Vronsky-Babin To Appear Here Monday

By Ruth Lechner
What some critics have called the most brilliant piano team of our generation, the Vronsky-Babin piano duo, will appear Jan. 15 at 8 p.m. in the Knights gymnasium as the third attraction in this year's Artist Series.

Compled in private life as well as on the stage, Vitya Vronsky and Victor Babin are noted not only for their transcendental piano but also for their intelligent concept in interpretation and concept.

Major Berlin
While studying in Berlin under Arthur Schachel, they met and decided to join their lives and careers. In 1937 in C. Babin their American debut and were widely acclaimed everywhere as the most popular and outstanding piano duo of our time. Their records are said to be the fastest selling of any piano duo. They have appeared with the Minneapolis symphony several times.

Making yearly transcontinental tours of Canada and the United States, they have, since 1947, also toured in Europe and Asia. Such was the popular demand in Israel that they once gave 10 concerts in 15 days although they had scheduled only six.

To Play 'Patriotique'
Included on the program are Beethoven's "Sonata in G Major," Liszt's "Concerto Patriotique," the well-known "Slavie Dance" by Dvorak will be included as well as "Trois Mouvements" by Igor Stravinski.

Several concert grand pianos will be obtained for this occasion from Mason City and the University of Minnesota. Dr. A. W. Swensen, chairman of the Arts and Sciences committee, predicts an average crowd for the concert.

Nation-Wide Rush Hits Draft-Age Men As 9 Enter Service

Current nationwide rush to enlist in the armed forces has hit Warburg during the past two weeks, and at least nine enlistees will be in uniform by the end of the semester plus three reservists who have been recalled.

Those who have already reported for duty are Richard Fischer, Curtis Wuest and Howard Wolgram, seniors, and Roland Seegers, junior, who have joined the Air Force, and Edwin Rader, sophomore, who has re-enlisted in the Navy.

Greenwald To Leave
Scheduled to leave tomorrow is Myron Greenwald, president of the freshman class, who has re-enlisted in the Army.

On Jan. 29 three Warburg sophomores, Fred Downing, Wendell Williams and Ed Harniman, will leave for active duty with the Navy, having enlisted this week.

Wienke On List
When Harold Wienke, junior and TRFPT columnist, leaves for the Marines at the end of the semester, he will be the third Warburg reservist to be called back to active duty. Robert Snyder and Roy Peterson, juniors, were called to active duty. Snyder is now serving with the Army in Europe and Peterson, also with the Army, is scheduled to leave for Europe soon.

On Tuesday, Jan. 9, Jack Bosack, sophomore, and Gordon Hanson, freshman, reported for selective service physical examinations at Madison, Wis. According to Hanson, they were told that they would not be called before June 1.

Becker Finds Hope In Spite Of Tension At AAC Convention

By Claude Grelling
"I have come back from Atlantic City with a greater feeling of confidence in the future than I have had at any time during the past six months."

These were the words of Dr. C. H. Becker, Thursday night, immediately after he had returned to the campus from the conference of the Association of American colleges held in New Jersey. Dr. Becker had been in attendance since the beginning of the week.

Specific purpose of the convention was a clarification of the status of colleges and universities with regard to military service. Noted authorities on military and international affairs spoke during the four days to the effect that the hundred and fifty college presidents who were in attendance.

Long-Term Proposition
"It was made very clear to us," added Dr. Becker, "that this situation is not a short-term proposition. Students in our colleges must not make the mistake of thinking that this is a thing that should come, would be over in four or five years. We face a period of tension which may well extend throughout our lifetime."

"The situation is serious, but it is not a crisis. We must understand that this situation is not to be accepted as normal. It is a situation which we, as educators, must face. Our duty to plan in terms of perhaps several years ahead is not in terms of years or even decades. Several years ahead will demand an almost effort to do as we, as young, as well as old. We owe it to our country to be as well prepared as possible. For the college student that means that he must get all the education he can get. This education can be a premium."

Various resolutions were adopted at the meeting, all of them by unanimous vote. Most interesting to college students would probably be resolution two, which reads as follows:

"We, the representatives at the meeting request that appropriate authorities take immediate steps to secure the power of whose induction is now postponed or deferred will be permitted to go to any place, at the termination of their military commitment or deferment, to any branch of the military services in which they are voluntarily engaged, or in which they are serving, without interruption, regardless of any interference by the Selective Service system."

UN More Powerful
Warren Austin, American delegate to the United Nations, also addressed the group. He said among other things that the UN today is much more powerful than is commonly supposed. The West will never be the aggressor, he said. Furthermore, the United States outweighs Russia economically and has the power to do so. "The USSR may have the edge in manpower," he said.

"This is the time for America to show her real strength," concluded Dr. Becker. "We must not give way to anxiety and hysteria. Strength lies not in fear but in the power of the mind. We cannot face the years ahead without strong intellectual leadership. We must have the greatest leaders of our country today put more emphasis on their education. This is the time for the future of the nation. At any time in the past. As college students, you can serve your country by being thorough, not thoroughly until such time as you are called into active service."

Faculty To Give Student Show Thursday

By Vinete Carlin
Little Theater, Thursday, Jan. 18, 8 p.m., are the place and time of something new this year for Warburg students—Faculty Student night.

Faculty members will lay aside their dignity and present the gay panorama of "Around the Year at Warburg"—a series of faculty and student sketches with Dr. Gerhard Ottersberg as master of ceremonies.

Group will start its interpretation of college life with the much loved registration rituals of early September, freshman initiation will follow, and so on through the year.

Artist Series to Mimic
Artist Series will receive due tribute in the "Around the Year at Warburg" impersonation of Rudy Ives, Dr. E. A. Hovdeson and Roy Martin. Also have tricks up their sleeves. The "Cracker Dance" troupe will keep "whoop-de-doo" along the line of "whoop-de-doo."

There are only a few of the musical and dramatic treats in mind. The end of the school year brings the preview of Commencement.

Proceeds to Buy Bells
Proceeds of the voluntary offering tonight of admittance for the year, will be used to buy bells for the new Little Theater.

Miss Erna Moeck, chairman of Faculty Student night, reveals, "In bells, people hear some strange things. Many times, in the Little Theater, in Jan. 18, it is to remind them that they are to come well behaved to the Little Theater."

Cracker Dance troupe will keep "whoop-de-doo" along the line of "whoop-de-doo."

Leaguers Will Hold Talent Festival Here

Iowa League Leaguers will be on the campus Saturday, Feb. 3, when Warburg plays host to the second annual Little League Talent Festival.

This all-day event will begin in the morning with auditions before faculty members of the Warburg speech and music departments. After luncheon in the cafeteria, top performers in the auditions will assemble for a program. Scholarships will be awarded to leaguers showing unusual talent in music and speech.

No admission charge will be made for the program to be held at 2:30 p.m. in the Little Theater. Warburg students here have an opportunity to see future fine arts students in action.

Warburg Players will present Kurt Wolff's "Down in the Valley" Feb. 1 and 2 in the Little Theater, beginning at 8 p.m. The production will be co-directed by Louis Snyder and Phil Mueller, seniors.

Attempting something new this year, the Players will produce a "drama set to music," rather than a melodrama such as was given the past two years. This musical will be the first in the history of the Players.

Advanced Registration To Begin Jan. 15

Students may register in advance for the second semester, as recently announced by Miss Marie K. Harms, college registrar. Advanced registration may be made between Jan. 15 and Jan. 23 and the regular registration procedure will be followed.

Advisers should be consulted by Jan. 18, and it is necessary to secure their approval of the schedule before registration is completed. A list giving the time at which advisers may be contacted will be posted.

According to Miss Harms, the opportunity to register in advance was designed for draft-worried students so that they may notify their draft boards of their completed registration for the second semester.

All those students not wishing to take advantage of the advanced registration opportunity may complete registration on the regular registration day, Wednesday.

New students will take entrance tests on Wednesday, Jan. 24, and on the next day.

Miss Harms states that those students interested in band but who have not been accepted will be welcomed in her office so that their schedules can be adjusted.

Summer School Set

Warburg College will offer an eleven-week summer school session this year, according to college officials. Student interest in the program may obtain additional information from the registrar's office. Full particulars of the session will be printed in a future issue of the TRUMPET.

The War Will Wait

Today's TRUMPET carries two front-page stories directly related to the Korean war and its effect on Wartburg. One treats the very real fact that enrollment here will go down next semester because of enlistments in the armed forces. Nine men have already reported, and more will probably go in the near future. The other story is a resume of President Becker's experiences at the meeting of the Association of American colleges in Atlantic City, N. J., this week.

It is this second story that reveals something which many of us may not have realized—we are facing, not two years, not four years, perhaps not ten years of tension, but a lifetime. Once we digest that fact with all its implications, it will be much easier to know what our duty in the future will be.

A lifetime is a long time through which a generation, it may be that our children will not have a clear understanding of the word "peace" merely because they have never experienced it. It's an unpleasant thought, we admit, but it is one to which we might as well get used.

What we must realize is that the problem posed by this war will not be solved by a four-year effort in the armed forces. This war cannot be won by an extraordinary effort of the nation, a short-term effort during which all normal activity is suspended and everything keyed to the job of fighting. Our nation must accept the danger of war as the normal situation and meet the situation, not by dropping all normal activities in favor of the war effort, but by maintaining these normal activities while, AT THE SAME TIME, mobilizing to its fullest capacity.

In short, this means that our life in the years to come will not be composed of entirely DIFFERENT, war-keyed activities, but that we will have to assume, besides all the normal efforts, the extra effort of fighting a war. A nation simply cannot forego its essential life for thirty years and expect to remain alive.

That is why at the present time, except in unusual circumstances, it is unwise for college students to enlist. If we could be certain of a return to normal times within say, five years, such action would solve the problem. But in view of the fact that this is not such a short-term proposition, it is essential that those of us who attend college today remain here and get the most thorough training available. The war will wait. It will probably still be there when we get out. But unless we can furnish the intellectual leadership in the dark years ahead, America is doomed.

Retreat Now Means Defeat

In the Congress of the United States a great debate is taking form, a debate which may decide whether we will choose to stand alone against communism or whether we will avail ourselves of the assistance of the Axis nations. A fearful decision has arisen, demanding that we abandon our European allies and strengthen instead the Western Hemisphere as the "Gibraltar of Democracy."

There are a great many reasons why I consider this policy wrong. But since men like Hoover and Fisk declare that they advocate the desertion of our allies because of "practical" considerations, I will attempt to reply with equally "practical" answers.

The anxiety of these men stems from the fact that they, and all Americans, want no more Korea. Therefore they have, after careful thought, come up with a realistic solution. Since defensive arrangements in Western Europe are going to cost money, and since we don't want to waste our American manpower in a fruitless struggle to hold Europe, the United States should move out of Europe. Then our nation should fortify itself in the Western Hemisphere, safe from all aggressors. Of course, if Europe will then help itself, we might cautiously advance a little aid. This is the answer, after looking at the facts.

Naturally, our previous commitments to these nations will now mean nothing. The fact that we are all more or less democratic and Christian nations should not be considered for we must not be sentimental. And certainly these nations are at fault if their war-torn economies cannot match our mobilization efforts.

I wonder if I could ask these experts to take another look at Korea. It seems to me that at the most important reasons we learned was the brutal fact that we just don't have the manpower to match the countless hordes of the East. Yet at the same time these honorable statesmen want to cast aside the millions of Western Europe who would be fighting on our side. The free nations could raise a force at least equal to that of the United States, and with a nucleus of American troops and American aid could balance and hold in check the ever-present Russian threat in Europe.

Not only would these men be an asset to our cause, but the industrial potential of these nations is a factor which should be considered. If Russia could get control of this, it would only be a matter of time until the only real advantage we hold over the communist—greater industrial and technological might—would be erased.

Today, Europe's security is our security. Our oceans no longer isolate us from attack, and retreat to our shores, no matter what you call it, is a defeat. Yet some of our leaders continue to practice this unrealistic reality. When will they learn that the only realities worthy of the name are the faith and the love of freedom found in the hearts of men everywhere? I pray that their selfish and shortsighted actions now will not destroy these, our greatest allies.

Bonnie Thrilled At Choice

By Ruth Lechner

Bonnie by name as well as by nature, Bonnie Balke, sophomore, was chosen Winter Sports queen by the "W" staff.

Crowning of the queen took place during the halftime of the Plattville-Wartburg game Dec. 19. The retiring Fall Sports queen, Betty von Fischer, crowned her successor, Attendant Bonnie were Joanne Schmidt and Margaret Boebel, freshmen.

'My Greatest Thrill'

"It was the greatest thrill of my life, I believe," commented Bonnie. "No kidding, it was really nice."

This blue-eyed blonde will soon be leaving Wartburg's campus. Finishing a parish worker's course, she has received a call to Trinity Lutheran church in Chicago. She will leave at the end of the semester.

"Naturally I hate to leave," said Bonnie regretfully. "But it's a wonderful job and just what I wanted—just exactly."

Active In Choir.

Bonnie has been active in many student organizations, and she will certainly be missed. Her alto voice will be absent from the ranks of Wartburg choir, her favorite activity, in which she has been singing for the past two years.

Her interest in sports is evidenced, by her election to the vice-presidency of W.A.A. Pikes, parish workers' organization, claims her as member, as does Wartburg Players.

Enjoys Sports, Too.

Wrestling and basketball are especially interesting to her, although she says she has no particular favorite. She enjoys badminton and roller skating very much.

Crab Orchard, Neb., claims Bonnie, but she says Adams is really her home town. She has taught school three years and has attended the University of Nebraska for a summer.

Just one more thing—her pet peeve is her name, Bonnie Belle. She'd prefer it to be just Bonnie.

Knights Drop 3, Salvage 2 In Holiday Play, Still Sport 6-4 Record

By Chuck Luck
Knights basketball fortunes took a slight dip downward in holiday season activities. The Axmen dropped three of five encounters since the last issue of the TRUMPET, two losses coming as heart-breakers in the invitational tournament, the third at the hands of Westmar in the conference opener last weekend.

Five games being in the thriller classification, the scores began to close that decisions since the last issue of the TRUMPET. Wartburg earned a split in the two contests which went into overtime.

Fight To See Platteville.
Playing poorer than earlier in the season, the Knights had a rough time turning back Platteville Teachers, 57-53, the last night before vacation. Only Art Miller hit over ten points that evening for Wartburg, his 17 counters giving the home team the edge.

History repeated itself in the holiday invitational as Wartburg once more played the perfect host by finishing last. The Knights lost their two games by a total of three points, Augsburg coming from behind to win in the first round, 57-55, and Augsburg taking the consolation final in a blistering overtime fracas, 69-68.

Shooting Percentage Drops.
Knights play again far below pre-holiday standards as percentages dropped way down and defensive play became quite ragged. Competition being no tougher than it was, the Orange and Black could quite conceivably have walked off with one of the two trophies handed out, if they had played par basketball.

Luther's Norsemen, supposedly the best bet for first place money, wound up second, losing the final by 21 points to Augsburg, the team that had edged out Wartburg by a single field goal the night before. Jack Bostrick had the most points for the Knights with 26 points. Olson pushed home 17 counters against Augsburg or better in the game total.

Lose To Westmar.
In opening their conference season last Friday, the Axmen stayed mired in their losing ways, falling before lanky Westmar, 55-50. Art Miller contributed 13 points as the Knights hit a team total low for the season.

Against Dubuque Tuesday night the Axmen finally began to look like the boys who trounced Doane and St. Olaf six weeks ago. In snapping out of their lethargy the Knights ended a three-game losing streak, and fought uphill all the way, sprawling the Spartans, 75-69, in a wild overtime.

Complete story on that contest with box score may be found elsewhere on this page.

Louis Average 3 Pts.
With the season nearly half-spent, the Orange and Black holds a commendable sixfour record, those four failures coming by an average of only three points a decision. The Knights are currently hitting 85 points a game and holding opponents to 58.

After 10 games Paul Olson and Art Miller place the scorers with 83 points each. Kurt is close behind with 80 tallies. Scoring as a whole is remarkably well distributed, however, the first eight men own averages ranging from ten to five points per game.

Upper Iowa meets Wartburg in the Knights gymnasium tonight to start off a week of conference competition. Next Tuesday the Axmen face Luther at Decorah and conference-champion Loras is here Friday night.

Axmen Win, 75-69, in Overtime Thriller

By Rennie Schumacher
Wartburg caught fire in the last half to shade Dubuque university 75-69 in a thrilling overtime game here Tuesday night.

Connecting on their first five shots, Dubuque U. burst into an early 11 to 4 lead. With seven minutes to go in the initial half, Wartburg was trailing 21-7.

Opponents Hit 376.
In the first half, Wartburg couldn't match the accuracy of the hotshooting Dubuque team. Dubuque, which retired the locked room with a 36-28 halftime lead, hit 16 of 43 shots for a 370 average. Wartburg banged at the bucket 41 times and hit 10 for 224.

Gathering momentum, the Axmen rallied to within two points of Dubuque, 41-39, before five minutes had passed in the second chapter. It took Dubuque seven minutes to collect its first Seven Goals Lead.

Four minutes before the end of the regulation playing time, Paul Olson pitched in a shot to give Wartburg a 53-37 edge. It was the first time the Knights took the lead.

It seemed as if the game was in the bag for Wartburg, but Dubuque came up with three points in the final 35 seconds to dead-end the contest at 64-64.

Knights Score 11.
Wartburg canned four buckets and two of six gift tosses in the overtime period to secure the victory.

Knights' shooting accuracy of 73% was lower than the 310 figure Dubuque made. Wartburg won the game by simply outgunning its rivals. Wartburg players directed no less than 108 shots at the 10-foot rim, while Dubuque fired only 73 times.

Miller Cops Title As Week's Athlete For Brilliant Play

By Rennie Schumacher
Art Miller, senior from Muscatine, was picked Athlete-of-the-Week by the "W" club committee, according to Dick Tilton, chairman. Miller, a physical education major, performed with brilliance in both the Lutherian tourney and Westmar games.

An important figure in Wartburg's aspiration for a good showing in the Iowa conference, Art has been playing varsity basketball ever since he was a sophomore at Muscatine high. During his prep career, he teamed up with Murray Wier and Walt Kohnkeff. Wier went on to win cage fame at Iowa U., and Kohnkeff starred at Iowa State Teachers college. Miller, by the way, is doing allright at Wartburg.

Before arriving at Wartburg last year, Art played at Washington U. in St. Louis and Muscatine junior college. He has a wealth of experience under his belt.

Art is an adept ball-handler, a passing whiz, a dead shot and a reliable on defense. In short, he is an all-around player—the kind of guy any coach would be happy to have on his team.

After the conclusion of basket-ball season, Art can usually be found on the Waverly golf links. Repeatedly breaking par, he was the top man on Wartburg's golf team last year.

Art is going into the coaching profession after graduation. He would like to become a YMCA director.
